RATIONALE

Everything we do now is based on the concept of 'Managing By Projects' or 'MBP specially in Health Sector'. In this scenario, it is absolutely essential for you to equip yourself with project management knowledge and its linkage of Health Care.

Project Management is the fastest growing discipline. Fortune magazine had rated project management as the career choice # 1. In order to enhance your own 'knowledge value' irrespective of the discipline you may be associated with such as medicine, law, engineering, software, construction, consulting, you need to equip yourself with an understanding of the PM principles. It will give you an edge over others assuming other factors are at par.

Importance of Project Management in Healthcare

Project Management is the art and science of converting abstract into concrete or vision into reality or strategy to delivery. At every stage, we create value and deliver value. The realization can be most effective through formal understanding of project management processes. Basically, for emerging as an independent discipline, we need to have a code of ethics and governance; standards; a Body of Knowledge; research activities to keep the profession running and certification for people to display their understanding of the fundamentals associated with the discipline. Implementation of Project Management techniques in healthcare would ensure to increased efficiency, effectiveness besides savings in cost.
